Advanced Praise for The Watch on the Fencepost

"What would happen if Tom Clancy met Jane Austen? Something like 'The Watch on the Fencepost!' One of the best novels I've read this year. Fast-paced, tense, and fun, with moments of laugh-out-loud humor and other moments of poignancy you need a hanky to get through. Kate Frasier and Cece Goldman are my new heroines. This may be the first book Kay DiBianca has written, but I hope it won't be her last." -- Mel Hughes, freelance editor and author

"... the writing is well-paced, peppered with interesting characters, and loaded with enough detours and misdirection to keep even avid sleuths guessing as the layers of the plot unfold. Well done!" -- Judy Karge, author of "A Light in the Dark: Reflections on Proverbs"

"Riveting. Page turner. Intriguing." -- Harry Samuels, author of "Beshert, True Stories of Connections" and "Crossroads: Chance or Destiny?"

"Kay DiBianca has written a captivating tale, creating characters who are human and engaging and weaving a truly fascinating mystery. From the gripping prologue to the conclusion of the story, her gift for storytelling keeps the reader eager for the next chapter and loath to set the book aside." -- Dr. Libby

Weed, President and Producer, Gilbert & Sullivan Austin, and author of "Read and Grow Picture Bible" and "Bible Handbook: A Guide to Basic Bible Study"

"In her book, 'The Watch on the Fencepost,' Kay DiBianca masterfully blends her personal theological, technical, political, and corporate experiences into a mystery full of twists and turns." -- David Zanca, author of "Engaging Your Team: Lessons For Servant Leadership"

"I was hooked on the story while reading the prologue. I really liked the nuggets of wisdom sprinkled throughout the book. I think it would make a good Hallmark mystery movie!" - John Anthony, D. Min, Bridges for Peace, Associate Field Advisor

"If you enjoy mystery and romance, 'The Watch on the Fencepost' is a must read." -- Brenda W. Morris, author of "Snapshots from the Past: Evidences of God's Love and Care"

"Part mystery, part romance, it had enough twists and turns to keep me turning the pages until the final twist on the last page." - Rebecca Brimmer, Jerusalem, Israel

"Following Kathryn from clue to clue as she unravels the mystery of her parents' death was a thrill that kept me page-turning until the very end. Whether you're an avid or casual reader, I highly recommend 'The Watch on the Fencepost' to be next on your reading list." -- Bryan D. Griffin, Esq., National Field Director, The Maccabee Task Force Foundation

" 'The Watch on the Fence Post' uses all kinds of various aspects of human life: personal, family, social, religious, political and even romantic, to unveil a mystery of truth." -- Very Rev. James Kibe Karanja, Rector, St. Peter's Anglican Church

" 'The Watch on the Fencepost' is a fast-paced mystery with well-rounded characters and a plot to keep the readers guessing along the way. Amid the mystery is a sweet story surrounding a family." -- Barbara Curtis, freelance editor and author

"So impressed! Well done and polished." -- Chad Holland, CEO, King of Kings Ministries and Senior Pastor, King of Kings Community Jerusalem
